

Structural Insulated Panels

Structural Insulated Panels [SIP's] are a high quality building system for residential commercial buildings. The panels consist of a polystyrene foam core sandwiched between two structural facings, usually oriented strand board (OSB). SIP's are produced under manufacturer controlled conditions and can be manufactured to fit almost any building design and style. The outcome is a structure system that's incredibly strong, energy-efficient and cost effective. Building with SIP's will help you save time, money and labor.
